

ONE MINUTE REFLECTION – FLOOR TO TOMORROW [1:26]

Hello everyone, Roger here.

I want to quickly share something about these two versions of “Floor To Tomorrow.”

They both have exactly the same lyrics because they’re about the same road — the same journey we’re all on.

In the original “Floor To Tomorrow,” the music feels melancholic. You’re looking ahead. The climb feels real. It’s tiring... but there’s still hope. You’re pushing through today, believing tomorrow can be better.

Now listen to the Flip Side. Same words. Same road. But the music is upbeat and uplifting. Suddenly you’re standing in the same place, only now you’re looking back. You can see how far you’ve actually come. The struggles are still there, but now they feel different — they feel like proof that you kept going.

The circumstances didn’t change.
Your perspective did.

It’s like that big stack of papers sitting on your desk. At the beginning it feels overwhelming. Once you’ve worked through it all, you look at the exact same stack and feel proud. The papers didn’t change —you did.

So, I hope you enjoy both versions. Let the music do what words alone can’t — let it make you feel the shift.

Thank you for listening.
See you on the road tomorrow.

FLOOR TO TOMORROW [3:21]

FLOOR TO TOMORROW FLIP SIDE 3:10]

[Verse 1]

I am one of the poor
Should I remain on the floor
Modest in my physique
I cannot be that unique

[Pre-Chorus]

An active mind that is clear
I always speak without fear
I have more to bestow
Please see what I show

[Chorus]

Do I beg or do I borrow
Just to get by 'til tomorrow
Do I beg or do I borrow
Just to get by 'til tomorrow

[Verse 2]

I live in neither heaven or hell
Not truly sure of myself
I carry dust on my shoes
Still I got something to lose

[Pre-Chorus]

An active mind that is clear
I always speak without fear
I have more to bestow
Please see what I show

[Chorus]

Do I beg or do I borrow
Just to get by 'til tomorrow
Do I beg or do I borrow
Just to get by 'til tomorrow

[Bridge]

If you look past the seam
You might hear my quiet dream
I am more than what you see
I am fighting to be free

[Final Chorus]

Do I beg or do I borrow
Just to get by 'til tomorrow
Do I beg or do I borrow
Just to get by 'til tomorrow
Do I beg or do I borrow
Just to get by 'til tomorrow
